

Reinventing myself

Making the Change, Humans of IT
Tech Community APAC Online 07 Mar 2020

You are here for a reason

To figure out if a change is due

Careers are not always ladders and
straight paths

49%

Source: <http://blog.indeed.com/2019/10/30/career-change/>

53%

Source: <https://sg.yougov.com/en-sg/news/2019/10/03/half-singaporeans-work-jobs-unrelated-their-degree/>

2013

2014

First job

First transition

2016

2017

Discovered TechLadies

Attended Bootcamp #2
graduation party

TechLadies

2013

2014

First job

2016

First transition

2017

Discovered TechLadies

Attended Bootcamp #2
graduation party

TechLadies

TechLadies

2018

Applied for Bootcamp
#3

Built our first project on RoR!

Left job

Applied for Jumpstart!
Programme

3-month full time bootcamp

Started work as a Frontend Developer

2019

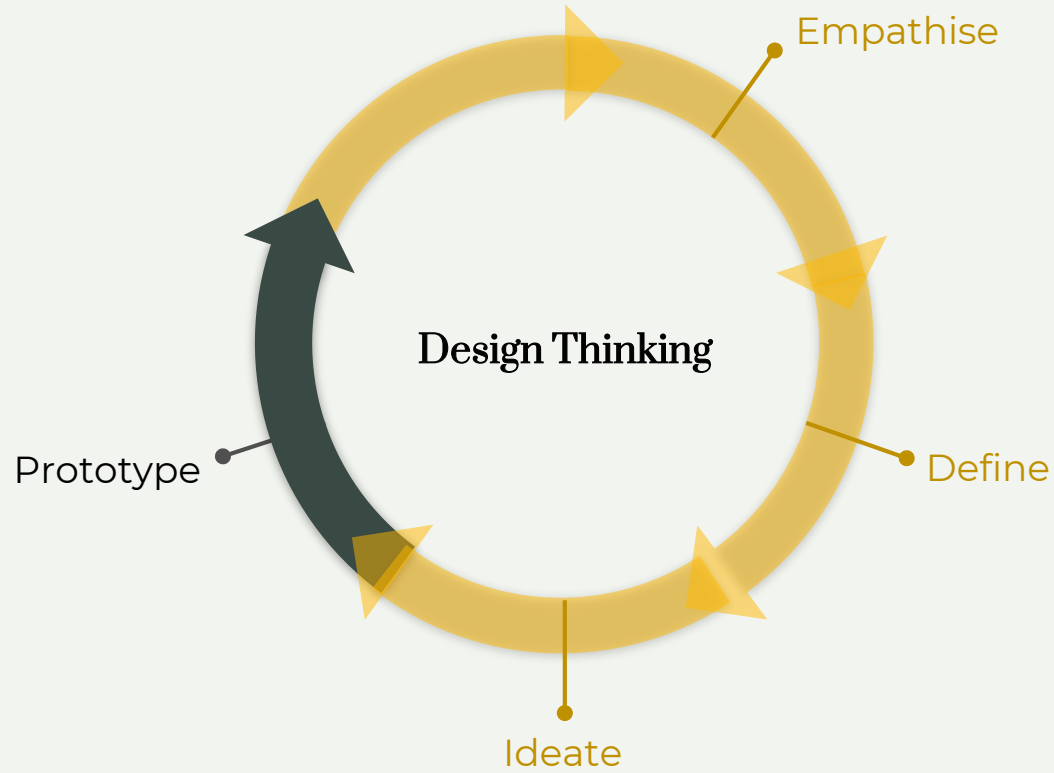

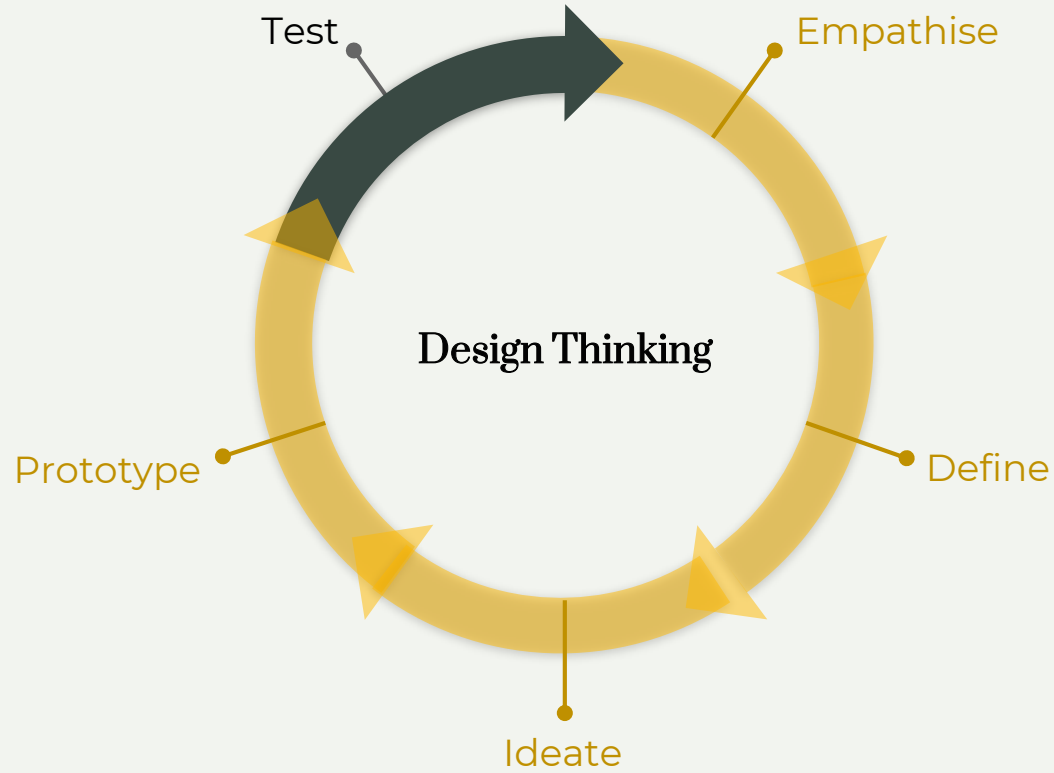

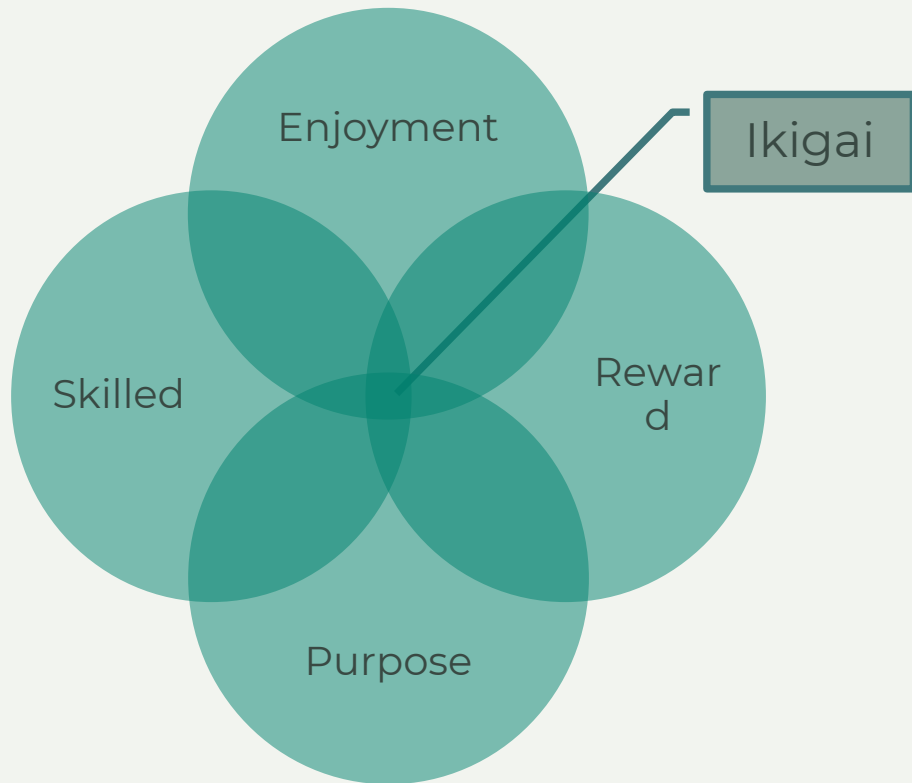

Composing

Evaluating the need to change

Defining your Avocation

Enjoyment

At a simple level, your avocation will be fun. You will find moments, hours and even days enjoying yourself in simple pleasure

Reward

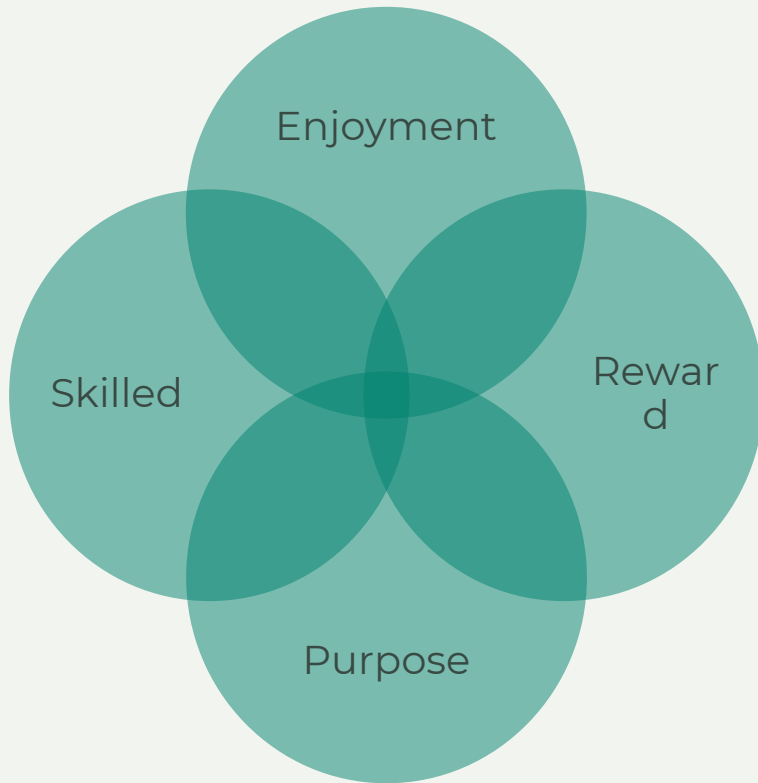

Being paid, allows for independence, as well as being tangible evidence that we are providing value.

Skilled

Being good at what we do provides a sense of excellence and accomplishment.

Purpose

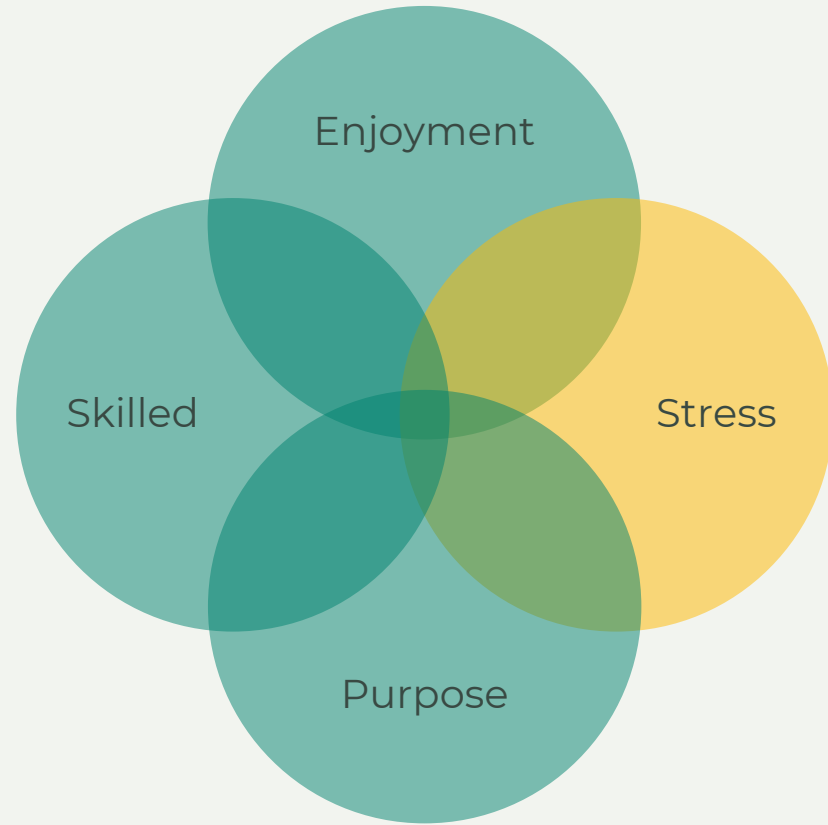

When our daily labors align with our purpose in life, we can endure difficulties with cheer.

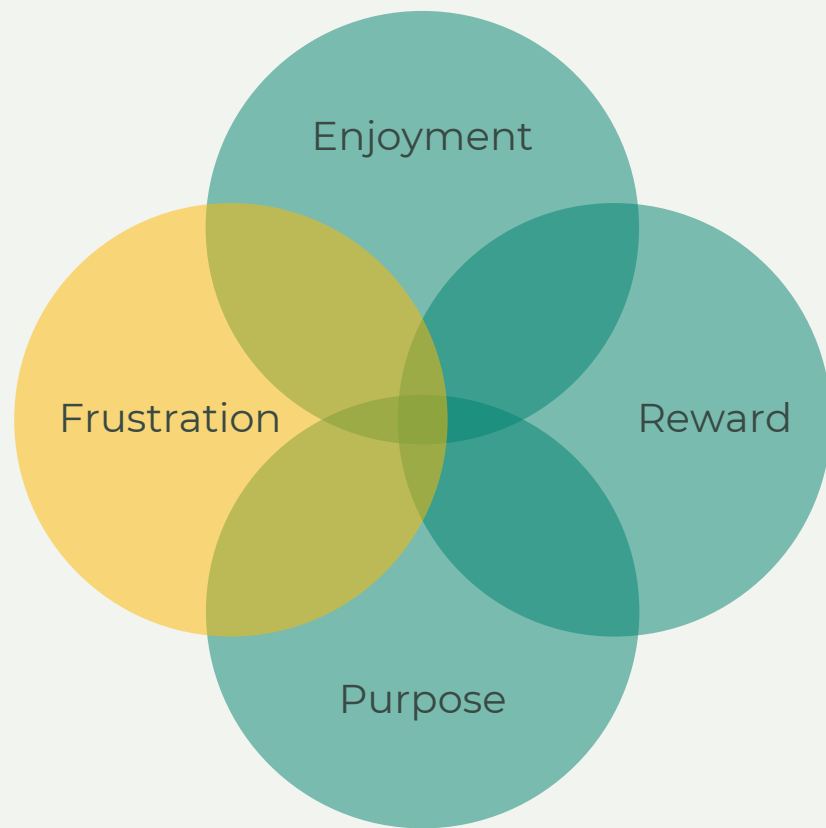

What is missing?

Ideating through what should change

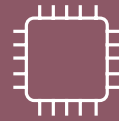

Side-Hustle

Role

Employer

Industry

Geography

Prototyping for capability network reputation

Education

Professional Organizations

Practice,
practice,
practice

Testing for fit

What must be true

What can't be true

What would be nice

Stepping into Learning

What's next?

What will your story be?

Thank you

thuimin.com

dianeboettcher.com/blog/
